Delhi Metro to resume services in phased manner for Sept 7, stations to be closely monitored: SOP

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/September 03
The Delhi Metro is all set to resume operations on September 7, after more than five months shut. Services will be resumed in phases, and all corridors will be operational by September 12, according to the standard operating procedure (SOP) announced by the Union ministry of housing and urban affairs (MHUA) on Wednesday. Upon its restart, operations will be monitored in real-time, and officials will be tasked with ensuring distancing and minimising crowds.

Singh Puri said the Delhi Metro, which runs across 10 lines and comprises 389km of the 67km of Metro lines in the country, will be monitored closely after a week.

"We will closely monitor crowd control measures and operations, and will review the arrangements. Initially, the frequency of service and entry and exit inside stations will be regulated, but full functionality will be resumed by September 12," Puri said on Wednesday.

For instance, senior officials said, trains will be allowed to skip a station if crowds are deemed too large. Further, no further passengers will be allowed entry into a station if officials consider it to have hit peak capacity.

The Delhi Metro, before it shut on March 22 — when Prime Minister Narendra Modi had called for a 'Janta Curfew', served around over 2.7 million people a day. But come September 7 — when it will be 169 days since it was closed, it is expected to cater to far fewer, to ensure social distancing at stations and inside Metro trains.

Announcing the protocol for resuming Metro services under the Unlock 4 plan, Union minister Hardeep

The Delhi Metro Rail Corporation (DMRC) will reopen its doors to passengers in three stages. In the first stage, the Metro will function for truncated periods — from 7am to 11am, and then from 4pm to 8pm. In this stage, Metro lines will also be opened in phases starting with the Yellow Line (Samaypur Badli to Huda City Centre) and the Gurugram Rapid Metro, which will be open for passengers from September 7.

This will be followed by the Blue Line (Dwarka Sector-21 to Vaidhali/Noida Electronic City) and the Pink Line (Majlis Park to Shiv Vihar) on September 9.

From September 10, the Metro will also resume services for the Red Line (Rithala to Shaheed Sthal), Green Line (Inderlok to Brigadier Hoshiyar Singh Marg/Kirti Nagar) and Violet Line (Kashmere Gate-Bahadurgarh).

Operational hours will be increased in the second stage, which will commence from September 11. Trains will continue to ply over shifts, each of which will be extended — 7am to 1pm, and 4pm to 10pm. In this stage, the Magenta (Janakpuri West to Botanical Garden) and Grey (Najafgarh-Dwarka) Lines will also be made operational.

In the third stage, from September 12, when Delhi Metro operations are expected to return to its full functionality, service hours will go back to their pre-lockdown schedule — from 6am to 11pm. At the same time, Airport Express Line (Dwarka sector-21-New Delhi Railway Station) services will also be thrown open to passengers.

Mangu Singh, managing director, DMRC, said all arrangements necessary have been made at stations and inside trains to ensure social distancing is maintained at all times. All stations will be monitored from a control room using CCTV cameras to ensure there are no crowds and that commuters follow all required norms.

Arrangements have also been made to spot passengers flouting guidelines and train drivers, through a real-time communication system, will be directed to stop trains at such stations.

Singh also said the footfall inside Metro stations would be monitored regularly, and entries stopped if the station is deemed full.

"We have a comprehensive plan in place, where everything will be monitored on a real-time basis," Singh said.

The agency will focus on the regular sanitisation of station premises and using trains and trains will also be restricted to allow passengers to board and de-board with ease, without having to crowd the train gates. This might affect the frequency of the trains and increase the journey time in the initial days, but the Delhi Metro will try to maintain its frequency at 5-7 minutes, he said.

"In the initial period, we have decided that all the gates of stations will not be opened for entry and exit. For each of the station, depending on the footfall and the size, we have released a list of one or two gates that will be used for entering and exiting the station," said Singh.

He added, "Since the use of tokens is risky now, because they could be carriers of the virus, we will only allow smart cards for trips. Top-up options will also be restricted to cashless modes for the time being."

AIIMS suspends routine surgeries for 15 days for wait of beds

MM BUREAU

New Delhi/September 03
An increase in the number of emergency patients has forced the All India Institute of Medical Sciences (AIIMS) to stop admitting patients for routine surgeries and procedures, two months after it gradually started resuming routine services in the wake of the Covid-19 pandemic.

The services will remain suspended for 15 days after which the situation will be reviewed and a call taken. During this period, the out-patient clinics will continue as usual. All emergency or semi-emergency surgeries will also be performed, the hospital informed.

"In view of the need to optimise usage of available inpatient beds for hospitalisation of seriously ill emergency/ semi-emergency patients, it has been decided to temporarily stop routine out-patient department admissions to general wards as well as private wards at the AIIMS hospital and all centres with immediate effect for a period of two weeks. The situation will be reviewed after that," said a letter from the hospital medical superintendent to all heads of departments.

Daily recovery and rescue of missing children in Delhi almost tripled between August 6 and 28, compared to the rest of the year, after the Delhi Police announced quick promotions to constables and head constables for finding at least 50 missing children aged below 14 in a year.

Centre on the Ring Road was converted into a stand-alone centre for treating coronavirus disease (Covid-19) patients. All accident and trauma cases were being managed by the main campus in the old-OPD block. The hospitals routine services had resumed in July after putting in place adequate protective measures against Covid-19. The number of patients that was allowed to visit each out-patient department was restricted to 15 to maintain social distancing. The hospital, before the lockdown, used to get about 18,000 patients in its OPD every day. Wednesday's move will result in higher density of routine surgeries and procedures, doctors said. As it is, the premier medical institute usually has a waiting period of up to a year for surgeries in certain departments.

The services against Covid-19 were suspended for at least three months during the lockdown, as a result of which many surgeries were postponed indefinitely.

There has been an increase in the number of Covid-19 cases reporting to the trauma centre, which means that we have to continue managing all trauma cases at the old OPD building on the main campus. The number of road accidents that we attend to has also gone up since the lockdown restrictions were eased. This has resulted in a shortage of beds at the hospital. We cannot stop treating the emergency patients," said Dr DK Sharma, medical superintendent, AIIMS.

The hospital had closed its out-patient units as well as all routine services in March-end when the nationwide lockdown was announced. The 250-bed AIIMS Trauma fall prey to traffickers, said police officers.

2473 children were reported missing till August 28 this year, of whom 1752 have been found/rescued.

This month, police rescues missed 100 children from roads, outside temples, gurudwaras, hospitals and railway station. The police have also solved cases of children who were trafficked from places such as Assam, Agra and Noida in Uttar Pradesh.

Explaining the success of the initiative, another senior officer, speaking on the condition of anonymity, said, "personnel posted in police control room van duty, who are otherwise not duty-bound to probe missing cases and are only the first responders to distress calls on the roads, found at least 20 missing children and reunited them with their families."

Another officer, who is part of the police control room van unit, said they have started using loudspeakers to make announcements, the minute we receive the report about a missing child.

"On August 27, our men in PCR van found a 3-year-old child crying near the Gandhi Nagar market in east Delhi. Now that our focus is on finding such children, we used the van loudspeaker to announce details of the child. Other police personnel in PCR vans, who heard us also started doing this in their areas. ## Notices to two DU colleges for 'caste discrimination'

Our Correspondent

New Delhi/September 03
The National Commission for Scheduled Castes has issued notices to Delhi University (DU) vice-chancellor Yogesh Tyagi seeking a report in connection with the alleged discrimination against SC and ST ad-hoc teachers in two university colleges. According to the notices received by the front on Wednesday, the Social Democratic Teachers' Front (SDTF) — a teachers' body — had filed complaints of SC and ST ad-hoc teachers at Daulat Ram College and Dyal Singh College (evening) being discriminated against. "A complaint has been received regarding gross discrimination against a scheduled caste ad-hoc teacher in the department of psychology by the principal of Daulat Ram College. The commission has decided to investigate and inquire into the matter in pursuance of the power conferred upon it under article 338 of the Constitution of India," the commission said in a notice. In another notice, the commission said, "A complaint has been received by the National Commission for Scheduled Castes regarding the joining of SC and ST candidates for the post of assistant professor (ad-hoc) in the department of English, Dyal Singh College (Evening), Delhi University. The commission has decided to investigate and inquire into the matter." The commission has asked the university to submit an action taken report in both the cases within 15 days, failing which it will issue summons to the university officials, the notices added. Despite several attempts, DU V-C Tyagi did not respond to calls and text sent for comment. A senior official, requesting anonymity, said, "The administration will ask for a report from both the colleges and action will be taken after examining the reports." When contacted, Daulat Ram College principal Savita Roy said that the college did not discriminate against anyone on the basis of their caste or religion. "The concerned teacher was appointed on an ad-hoc basis in August 2019 in the department of psychology in our college."

Incentives for finding missing kids pays off

Our Correspondent

New Delhi/September 03
Daily recovery and rescue of missing children in Delhi almost tripled between August 6 and 28, compared to the rest of the year, after the Delhi Police announced quick promotions to constables and head constables for finding at least 50 missing children aged below 14 in a year.

According to data provided by the Delhi Police, recoveries per day between January 1 and August 6 was six, which went up to 17, between August 7 and 28. The promotion order was issued on August 6.

A crime branch officer, who did not wish to be named, said, "There is a competition among the men and women in our force to find missing children now. It has suddenly become a top priority for them. Even we did not expect such quick results."

According to a report by the Delhi Commission for Protection of Child Rights (DCPCR) released last year, 17 children go missing every day in Delhi and at least two of them remain untraced. As per police statistics, at least 6,366 children went missing in 2019 from across the city, of whom police traced 4,311.

In order to reverse the trend, Delhi Police commissioner SN Srivastava ordered that any constable or head constable who finds at least 50 missing children aged below 14 of whom at least 15 children younger must be eight-years-old in a year would be eligible for an out-of-turn promotion. Usually, constables are eligible for promotion after five years in service, that too only if they clear a test. If the person does not take the test, it takes around 10 years to become a head constable.

Special stress was laid on finding children aged 14 or below since many of them

Satyendar Jain on rise in Covid-19 cases in national capital

Our Correspondent

New Delhi/September 03
Delhi health minister Satyendar Jain on Thursday said that the recent rise in Delhi's coronavirus cases is not a part of a second wave of the virus, as the infection never left the national capital. "You can't say it is a second wave. We could have called it a second wave if there were no positive cases for one or two months and then cases would've started coming again. The virus is still here in Delhi," he said. The national capital recorded 2,509 fresh cases, the highest single-day spike in nearly two months, on Wednesday. As many as 1.79,669 people have been infected in the city, while 19 fresh deaths took the toll to 4,481 on Wednesday. Speaking to reporters, Jain said people "should not stress about numbers". The government was increasing the testing for Covid-19, he added. "We are increasing the number of tests. We are emphasising on testing and working aggressively on it. Yesterday, the number was around 30,000 and today the number of tests will be around 35,000," he said. Delhi's case-fatality ratio was 0.76 per cent on Wednesday, the minister said, adding that it was a

Check on 24 old trees in Old Delhi, ensure their health and safeguard them, HC orders Delhi Govt, north civic body

Our Correspondent

New Delhi/September 03
The Delhi High Court Wednesday directed the Delhi government's tree officer to check on 24 old trees in Chandni Chowk area, together with the North Delhi Municipal Corporation, formulate a plan to restore them and save them from further damage of any kind.

The corporation on Wednesday submitted an affidavit listing the old trees in Dariba Kolan, Urdu Bazaar, Jama Masjid and Jagat Chaura areas on the court's earlier directions, issued while hearing a plea to restore an approximately 300-year-old tree in Nai Sadak area of Chandni Chowk.

On August 6, Nai Sadak resident Nitin Gupta had filed a plea, through advocate RK Kapoor, about the unauthorised construction taking place in the area that was hampering the tree.

While hearing his petition, justice Najmi Waziri had said it cannot be denied that in the Walled City, especially in the densely populated and heavily built-up area of Chandni Chowk, there are hardly any trees. Therefore, each tree in that neighbourhood is valuable and would need protection, he said. He had then asked the tree officer and the north civic body to jointly carry out a tree census in the Walled City.

On Wednesday, the civic body in its affidavit said that it has identified the trees and work has started to remove the concrete from around their trunk base.

Advocate Ajay Arora, the standing counsel of the North Delhi Municipal Corporation, said in some places, the work to remove the concrete could not be carried out because of lack of space and, in one case, the door passed to a house as the tree is abutting the foundation of that house. He also informed the court that at six places, people have constructed temples near the base of the tree and so the matter has been referred to the religious committee of the Delhi government for necessary action.

He also said some of the trees fall in the jurisdiction of the public works department (PWD) and the PWD has already completed the concrete removal work.

Following this, Waziri directed that the tree officer visit each tree and guide the corporation on the measures needed to restore and safeguard each tree.

Waziri also pulled up the Delhi government for its failure to protect the 300-year-old banyan tree in Nai Sadak, which has been damaged due to the illegal construction.

The Delhi government then detailed the action taken to remove cement and girders from around the tree, which is believed to have been damaged since before the British rule in India.

Advocate Gautam Narayan, the additional standing counsel of the Delhi government, said a large number of its roots have been damaged and, perhaps, are now dead for want of oxygen and moisture. But due to a high regenerative potential of the root system, the tree could develop new roots once the concrete around its base is removed and replaced with good alluvial soil or sandy loam. To prevent the attack of termites, due to presence of dead and decaying roots, and also to prevent the onset of pests (root borer) and pathogens (soil-borne fungi and bacteria), 1% neem cake will be added to the soils.

However, the court was unhappy that the upper girders, which were stifling the tree branches, are yet to be removed. The judge said action should be taken against the outgoing tree officer for not acting on the complaint given by area resident Kushmakar Rastogi in January.

"We are talking about a treasure, a living creature. How can you not act on the complaint given by Rastogi in January, rather you had given him a date in August," Waziri said while adding, "Take action against the outgoing tree officer. You can't keep on cutting trees because of the incompetence of officers." Advocate Narayan told the court that the current tree
